

The Boardwalk Cats, including this beautiful girl Eddie, are a fixture in Atlantic City, New Jersey. In fact, Alley Cat Allies has cared for the cats who live in colonies around the famous boardwalk for 14 years. Our Atlantic City Boardwalk Cats Project is a model for the nation. These cats are living proof that Trap-Neuter-Return (TNR) humanely stabilizes and reduces cat populations, improves cats' lives, and serves the community. The Atlantic City boardwalk cat population has decreased by 71% thanks to TNR. The remaining cats are hale and hearty at an average age of 12 years!

Thanks to your generous support, Alley Cat Allies is raising awareness and educating the nation about cats, TNR, accessible neuter and vaccination services, and the importance of humane policies. We believe cats deserve to live out their natural lives, but they need protection. That's why your support of Alley Cat Allies is so important.
